2. With regard to any nucleotide and/or amino acid sequence disclosed in the international application and necessary to the claimed invention, this opinion has been established on the basis of:

a. type of material

☐ a sequence listing

☐ table(s) related to the sequence listing

b. format of material

☐ in written format

☐ in computer readable form

PCT/JP2005/001512

Box No. V Reasoned statement under Rule 43bis.1(a)(i) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability;
citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. Statement

Novelty (N)	Claims 1-20	YES
	Claims	NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims 1-8, 16-17	YES
	Claims 9-15, 18-20	NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims 1-20	YES
	Claims	NO

2. Citations and explanations:

Document 1: JP 9-134349 A (Mantaro YAJIMA), 20 May 1997, Full text; Figs. 1 to 54
Document 2: JP 10-187679 A (Casio Computer Co., Ltd.), 21 July 1998, Full text; Figs. 1 to 9

The inventions of claims 1-8, 16-17 appear to involve an inventive step over each document cited in the ISR.

Based on a "difference condition" and "first record" corresponding to a main area, generating "second record" corresponding to a derivative area is neither described nor suggested in documents 1 or 2.

The inventions of claims 9-10, 12-15, 18, 20 do not appear to involve an inventive step based on documents 1-2 cited in the ISR.

Document 1 (Fig. 9) describes specifying an attribute of a plurality of data input cells as a whole. Because storing a plurality of data in a single cell is a common method as described in document 2, applying a technology described in document 1 to processing a document format having the derivative area would be easy for a person skilled in the art.

The inventions of claims 11, 19 do not appear to involve an inventive step over documents 1-2 cited in the ISR.

As described in Fig. 9 of document 1, adding up each item is a commonly practiced method. In addition, because storing a plurality of data in a single cell is a common method as described in document 2, a constitution for inputting a calculation result in a calculation result input cell with keeping the main area and the derivative area separate could be easily conceived of by a person skilled in the art.
